Answer of Question-19

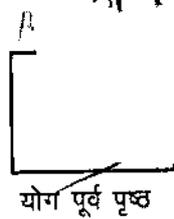

Civil Disobedience Movement : In Lahore session in 1929, congress passed a resolution of 'Purna Swaraj'. It was celebrated with zeal all over the country.

At the same time Lord Irwin refused to accept the resolution of Purna Swaraj. Gandhiji put forth 11 demands before Lord Irwin. These demands were, reduction in the land revenue, withdrawal of tax from salt, picketing on liquor shops etc. Gandhiji also stated that if the demands were not fulfilled he will start Civil Disobedience Movement.

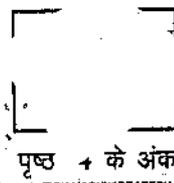

For this on 6th February, 1930, he started Civil Disobedience movement by reaching to Dandi with his 78 followers and broke the Salt Law.

In other words, Civil Disobedience Movement was started by breaking salt law.

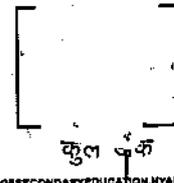

4

+

=

The main programmes of this Movement were as follows:-

- 1) Withdrawal of tax from salt.
- 2) 50% reduction in the land revenue.
- 3) Programme to boycott the foreign goods was finalised.

Importance This movement has a great importance in the history of national movement. For the first time, Indian women actively participated in this movement.

Boycott of foreign goods helped indigenous industries and the farmers also became aware of political knowledge.

Government tried its hard to crush this movement but finally it make a compromise.
